UNITED LABOR SHOWS SUPPORT FOR “VOTE NO ON PROP A” CAMPAIGN

(RAYTOWN, MO) – Union members across the metro have gathered in numbers to pick up their “Vote No on Prop A” yard signs and can coolers from United Labor Credit Union (ULCU) for the past few weeks. Members began asking for yard signs after noticing the large sign posted at ULCU along Raytown Road & 66th Ter., in Raytown, which is seen by tens of thousands driving the busy road each day. As inquiries came in through the Web site, e-mail and phone, ULCU Vice President Erin Luttrell directed members to their respective Union local, but says, “It just made sense to also have them available at the credit union for members, spouses, families and retirees who want to help spread the word.” After making a few calls, signs started pouring in from Union locals, to keep up with demand.

“United Labor stands with Missouri’s Unions and every working person who will be affected by Proposition A,” said ULCU President Tim Vogler. “Organized labor is critical part of a system of strong labor standards that makes it possible for regular working people to earn a decent living. We’ll always support that position and remain dedicated to our advocacy role.”

ULCU will continue to hand out signs as available through the vote on August 7.
